Why Retreat?

The word “retreat” is often associated with spiritual renewal, but withdrawing to a quiet place can be beneficial to body, mind and spirit. Everyone needs the opportunity to get away from the daily routine now and then to be renewed and reenergized in their personal lives, work, relationships and spiritual life. Whether you are planning for a church group, a group of colleagues at work, children and youth, married couples, singles, or a group of students within a class or school organization, retreats can be helpful in many ways.

Some of the reasons to consider a retreat are:

- Distractions are greatly reduced;
- An extended period of time to focus on a selected subject, issue, project, or need;
- Time for reflection and relaxation;
- Time and setting encourage physical activity and fun;
- A common experience and shared time strengthens community and teamwork;
- A natural environment is loaded with images and metaphors useful for teaching.

In addition to the beautiful setting, Hopewell offers many services that can enhance the success of your program. Call us to schedule your retreat today!

10 Quick and Effective Keys to Successful Retreats

1. Start planning early! Make reservations between three months and up to one year in advance. Choose your first, second, and perhaps third choice for dates. Involve some of the proposed participants in setting goals and planning activities. They know their own needs and can be your best recruiters. Set realistic goals for the number of participants.
2. Identify your purpose: Decide what issues, needs or subjects will be addressed at the retreat. What will be gained by those who attend the retreat?
3. Plan activities. Make sure planned activities fit the purpose. If time for personal reflection is needed, schedule accordingly. If improving cooperation and communication are objectives, you may want to arrange for some team building or low challenge elements.
4. Know the place. Visit Hopewell some of the planning team. The setting will suggest many ideas. Our staff will give you a tour and brainstorm ideas with you, if needed. Ask about special services like hey! rides, bonfires, challenge course, canoeing, etc....
5. Budget carefully. Your budget should include such as:
 - Site costs for room, food and other services as reserved.
 - Honorarium and expenses for outside leadership and program supplies.
 - Giveaways. (Some groups give special caps, bandanas, or t-shirts as mementos of the retreat.)
 - Add 10% for unexpected expenses or seed money for the next retreat.
 - Set fees accordingly.
 - Determine and communicate your policies about refunds and cancellations.
 - Determine your policy about scholarships.
6. Promote the event. Promote your event by direct communication with the people who will benefit from attending. Well in advance:
 - Line up persons to call and invite potential participants.
 - Prepare a fun promotional skit for an assembly, church supper, or worship.
 - Hand out and mail invitations with application forms.
 - Announce the retreat weekly until all spaces are full.
 - Do not cancel because of low numbers. Do the retreat with the remnant and make sure they have the time of their lives. They will come back so excited everyone will wish they had been there.
7. Resources: Plan and gather resources early and continue right up to the event. There will likely be surprises during the retreat so plan to be flexible but don't lose sight of the goals.
8. Creativity: Be creative with your program but maintain some traditions which are meaningful to participants.
9. Evaluation: Plan and prepare an evaluation process. How well were goals met? What was especially meaningful? What could be done better next time?
10. Your Next Retreat: Start planning your next retreat now. Reserve space soon.

However, deliberate damages such as graffiti or unnecessary discharge of fire equipment are costly to repair. Any damages beyond normal wear and tear will be billed to you at a minimum of $100 (for each incident) to cover repair costs.

In the event that Hopewell must cancel your reservation due to fire, natural disaster, or other acts of God you will be notified as soon as possible and given the option of rescheduling your event or receiving a full refund less the initial deposit.
